

WHERE DOES THE HERETIC SEEK GOD?

A heretic is not an atheist, but a seeker. He seeks the love of God in man. He is not a supplicant. He does not need prayers: "...give, God...save, God...". He acts with your heart, because you desperately want to find what is hidden, what is not seen.

While searching, he finds a lot of bad and a little good:

"Total - or totalitarian - lies flood everything like the audible and visible armament of this, perhaps the last, World War. The plague of lies."

"At the same time, the truth is so simple and eternal: you will have no peace unless it comes to the soul."

"And what can the orphan soul of the Universe do, wandering in darkness?"

Although the soul understands that:

"The greatest sin is to destroy Life - life. No deity tells us to do this, no deity commands us to hate. Unless it is the Evil One - the enemy of all humanity."

"Let us not be his servants..."

The Author urges...but it's hard for him to comfort us when he's...

"...a supranational death industry and a thriving business of individual and mass murder - that's our modern culture. Murder, of course."

The author calls for writing a global Constitution for people:

"We, the people, on our blue planet...will and promise to be human."

If this could fit into all hearts...if we were mature...Why are we still immature?

"Without God, there really would be no one to talk to."

We would be left alone in the dark. We would destroy ourselves out of fear.

That's exactly what's happening.

"Poor humanity."

So it's no coincidence...

"...desperate populist religions, beliefs in cosmic saviors, will flourish or the supposed possibilities of emigrating from our mad planet. This creates many new and huge sects."

"Why do we suffer...?" asks the Author.

Prayers remain...Questions to the saints - unanswered.

"As Christianity declines due to the weakness of souls, a shallow and short-lived meaninglessness prevails."

Hope is not yet extinguished:

"The spirit probably exists."

She visits us both individually and in groups (like on January 13th).

"Look - if it visits, it is."

How could it be otherwise? After all, the Comforter had been promised.

"If there is a God within a person with whom one can talk and consult, then such a creature is still a human being."

The author raises fundamental questions:

"Is a person guilty of being born and experiencing everything that followed?"

Is the person innocent (etc, etc).

Can a person be forgiven for what he (etc, etc) came to be and was for a while?

Is man eternally guilty of his existence?

The problem of guilt is enormous. Therefore, it is better to write it off in advance, as a loss due to the flaws of creation.

And just to be innocent.

Now we think too...

Humanity can only wait for a miracle.

Is another miracle possible?

The Apostle Paul asked himself and everyone: who would I be if I did not have love?

And he replied: I would be nothing."

"We survived until January 13th. Then the love of people alone won the fight against the tanks." to others, to all my loved ones, to thousands around me, love of freedom and homeland.

"It doesn't happen often. Let's know and not forget."

"DON'T FORGET!" said my beloved Indian mystic Osho.

SAMASATI: If a person loses his memory, then night comes.

And God gave us Vytautas in that difficult time, so that we would not perish in a sinking ship without a captain. And how much he, like all heretics (including Jesus Christ), was slandered, dragged to the stake...

THERE IS AN UNANSWERED QUESTION:

WHO deceived a person? Who constantly deceives him? To write off everything to some abstract Evil One? No. I do not agree with that. If some people have love in their hearts, why not everyone? Why do we support the heartless, why do we believe their sermons, why do we elect them, sometimes even admire them? Even though we see that they are not worthy of it? We elect the heartless... having betrayed our hearts to the Evil One... There is no light in the soul - there is no consciousness, no trouble. It is a personal tragedy of the soul.
